

Stopwatch write-up

I think that a stopwatch widget is a great fit since the user may want to do some exercise and also plan at the same time without leaving the app.

We have to create the function for the running time and also a variable to keep track of how much time has actually elapsed so that we can show the user. The other important variables are the minutes seconds and milliseconds so as to make the app user friendly.